REFUSES TO CHANGE

Episcopal Convention Disposes of Year's Business - The Reveread Edmund Duckworth May izecome the Archdeacon.

After an animated discussion as to the propriety of changing the name of the Diocese of Missouri to that of St. Louis. the measure was defeated at the Episcopal Convention in St. Peter's Church yesterday afternoon by a vote of 28 to 20. The chief reason advanced against the proposition was that it would result in interminable confusion and possibly in legal compilcations.

The measure has been agitated for the last three years by the Reverend Doctor G. D. B. Miller, who at the last conven-tion was the author of a resolution di-recting the change to be made at this recting the change to be made at this assistant.

The committee to whom it was referred reported that it would not be expedient, especially since there is not apparent necessity for such a change.

Doctor Miller, however, contended that the hame of Diocese of Missouri is a misnemer, since it would indicate that the Eishop is the spiritual head of the Episcopal Church of the entire State, instead of only the eastern half, as is the case, it argued that many of the dioceses having State or sectional names are changing them to that of the see city.

The Reverend Doctor Winchester, who was a member of the committee which considered the matter, said that to change the name of the diocese would result in endless confusion. "In this city we have an Archibishop," he said, "of a different Genemination, it is true, but to have our litable action of the section." an Architation, he said, "of a different Genemination, it is true, but to have our Hishop called the Hishop of St. Leuis would likely cause people not familiar with the conditions here to think that the latter is subservient to the former."

denomination, it is true, but to have our lishop called the Bishop of St. Leuis would likely crosse people not familiar with the conditions here to think that the latter is subservient to the former.

He also dwelt upon precedence governing the matter All of the important diocess which later have been subdivided have retained the State name. This, ne said, has been so since the founding of the church in this country.

LAYMAN'S VIEWS.

Mr. Chase of Ferguson was the first layman to express his views on the subject, and was decidedly in favor of a change of name. "We don't care about the Catholic Architishop," he said, "and why should we care about the Bishop of the church will be constructed of stone usestion." The time is not far off when we, leo, will have architishops in this country, and St. Louis no doubt will be the first to have one."

The Reverend Courtney Jones favors the name of "Eastern Missouri" as correctly designating the exact boundaries of the discess. The country people, he said, would likely consider themselves abandoned entirely by the Bishop were the directors rolling to the country of the missouri as correctly designating the exact boundaries of the discess. The Reverend Courtney Jones favors the name of "Lastern Missouri" as correctly designating the exact boundaries of the discress. The country people, he said, would likely consider themselves abandoned entirely by the Bishop were the name to be changed to that of the seccity, and they would be inclined to believe that the Bishop is for the city work. Team see no reason at all for a change in the name," said the Reverend P. W. Fastalierry, "except to reward Mr. Miller for his pertinacity in keeping this subject alive for the last three years."

Eastop Tattle, who is the presiding officer of the convention, was called upon to state his preference in the matter, but refused to influence the celesates, he said, by anything he might say.

A vote was then taken on the question and resulted in thirty-eight votes being east in favor of retaining the present name and twenty in favor of a new name.
